

Tasking:
Next catastrophe killing over 100 people

Viewer – Daz
Double blind
Method – CRV loose

Feedback - enclosed

SUMMARY

Life, objects, movement.
Pain, suffering, heat.
Heat, exhaustion, hot – stuffy.
Collapse, structure, impacted, energy.
Large rumbling noise.
Screams, unstable.
Power and confusion, people.
Crushed, impacted, natural.
Ground shakes, everything shakes.

Hills, high, up high.
More than one town/city.
Hot, central.
Dark skinned people.

[asked when]
Soon!
Rocks, goats, trees, hot.
Slide type movement, covered?
The whole land for a long way impacted.

Epicentre
Inland not coastal.
Thousands dead.
Still feels like a natural effect.
Definite earthquake feel – july/aug

Middle east area, large impact, heat.
Devastation, more to come.
Near – khanda?, khander? – something like this!
Klondike, mining?
Villages destroyed.
Lasting only a fw minutes – taken by surprise.

AOL's of:
Afghanistan
Plates!
Morning!

NEAR MAJOR CATASTROPHE OF 100 DEAD

PJ: 1
DAR
11.7.06

FALL

life - objects - sound notes -

Pain - Sifting - heat -
heat - exhaustion - hot - stuffy -

Collapsed - Structures - - unsteady energy

large rumbling noise -

Screams -

Unstable

panic and confusion, people - crushed, unsteady - noted.

grab Sides, everything Sides -

Hills - remote area.

pg: 2

epicentre - high - up high.
more than one town/city.

Ad - Central -

Dark Skinned people -

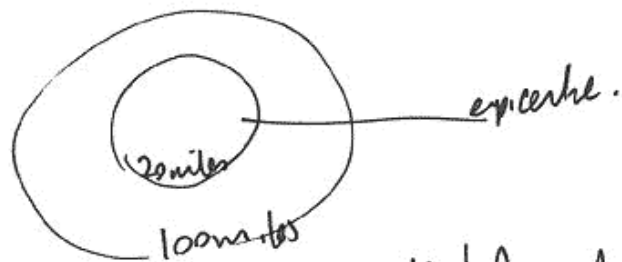

when?

Scan?

Rocks, goats, trees - barren, hilly.

Slide type movement.
→ covered.

The whole land for a long way covered

Inland - not Coastal.

Hills/mountain - present

As of 3
Afghanistan.

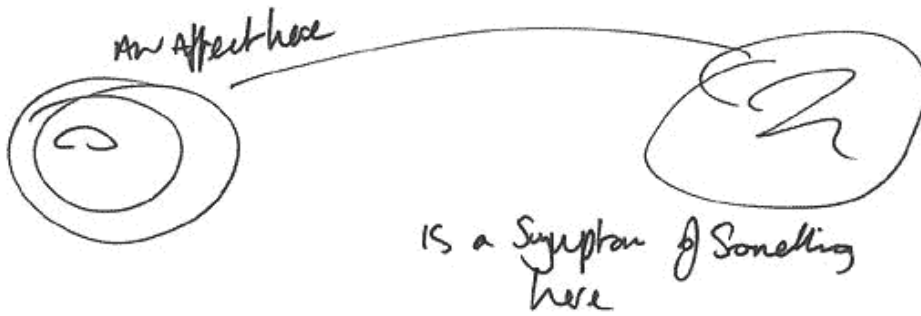

~~Hand~~ Thousand/s dead.

Still feels like a natural event - natural effect -

Despite earthquake feel. JULY/AUG do.

middle east area - large impact - best-devastation - distinct change based.

More to Come.

WERR - KAANDA

KHANDER - something like this!

As of PLATES.

..... REST Pg 4.
Business?

KLONDIKE - MINING?
VILLIAGES DESTROYED.
LASTING ONLY A FEW MINUTES - TAKEN BY SURPRISE -

AOL
MORNING.

AOL
26th
V. EARLY!

~~Spikes~~
Spikes

AOL KAMUHAHAZ?

Last Updated: Saturday, 15 July 2006, 08:34 GMT 09:34 UK

E-mail this to a friend

Printable version

UK defends strike on Afghan town

By Alastair Leithead
BBC News, Helmand province

British forces in Afghanistan have defended their decision to call in US planes to drop 500lb bombs on Taliban fighters in a town in Helmand province.

Witnesses say there were many civilian deaths and injuries but UK forces said there was no evidence of any.

Civilians in Nawzad told the BBC that aircraft dropped at least three bombs, destroying shops and a school.

British forces have been protecting the district government headquarters in Nawzad for a month.

Much of the town's market of 150 shops has been reduced to rubble and there are deep craters where the bombs struck.

The newly built two-storey school received a direct hit, causing its concrete roof to collapse.

British troops said the school was being used by the Taliban to launch mortars.

Another building has reinforced concrete rods jutting out from its crumbling walls in the shape of a bomb blast.

'Constant attack'

The town has become a front line between a small force of British soldiers and the Taliban fighters who are bombarding them from just a few hundred metres away.

Part of the UK mission is to win hearts and minds

Quick guide: Afghanistan

BBC NEWS:VIDEO AND AUDIO

The aftermath of the bombing raid on an Afghan town

VIDEO

UK TROOPS IN AFGHANISTAN

LATEST STORIES

- UK defends strike on Afghan town
- Extra UK troops for Afghanistan
- Taliban 'energised' by UK troops
- Funeral held for 'hero of Islam'
- UK considers bigger Afghan force

Helping Helmand

The situation needs careful handling, Alastair Leithead says.

BACKGROUND AND ANALYSIS

- Afghanistan's unruly province
- Targeting Taliban
- Taliban tactics and equipment
- UK forces deaths in Afghanistan
- Q&A: Troop deployment
- Where are British troops?

In depth: Afghanistan's future

TOP UK STORIES

- NatWest Three bailed by US court
- UK defends strike on Afghan town
- Runners set off for Sport Relief

RSS

What is RSS?

MOST POPULAR STORIES NOW

MOST E-MAILED

MOST READ

Tweedy and Cole in celeb wedding

Nikki given boot in Big Brother

UK commanders said they had been under constant attack for the past two weeks and the Taleban fighters were close to overrunning the base when the US air strike was called in.

There are reports of anything from 25 to 200 people being killed but it is almost impossible to verify.

The governor of Helmand said 19 people had been killed and they were all Taleban.

The commander of the Helmand taskforce, Col Charlie Knaggs, said there was no evidence of civilian casualties and the force used was necessary to protect his troops.

-  Lebanon hit by more Israeli raids
-  iPod gadget set for legalisation
-  Russian WTO bid falters at summit

Most popular now, in detail

 E-mail this to a friend

 Printable version

DON'T MISS

Standing together
British Indians gather to remember Mumbai blast victims

Early test
Israel's PM will be judged on his handling of military crises

Serie A sale
Match-fixing scandal could spark star sale
FROM BBC SPORT >>

Desktop tools E-mail services Mobiles/PDAs Headlines for your site

Help Privacy and Cookies Policy News sources About the BBC Contact us